Springfield, Mo., Partially Destroyed by a Cyclone Tuesday Afternoon.

Five Persons Killed in the City Proper and Thirty Others Injured.

Over Two Hundred Buildings Destroyed —The Property Loss Nearly $250,000.

Several Hamlets in Other Parts of Green County Also Laid in Ruins.

The Storm, as Usual, Followed by a Fearful Rain-Flood—Relief Measures.

Depletion in a Few Words This Morning Concerning the Damage and Details by the Disaster.

THE CYCLONE.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 5.—[Special.]—A cyclone of terrific violence and estimated by a few estimates at nearly $250,000 passed over Springfield, Green County, this afternoon, killing five persons outright and injuring thirty more. The course of the fatal cyclone was

Five persons killed,
Five fatally injured,
Five seriously injured,
Five injured,
Thirty-two slightly injured.

The storm, according to the form of a cloud moving down to the earth, first struck the northwest part of the town, shortly after 4 o'clock. Passing in its easterly direction along the north part of Boonville and the south portion of North Springfield, the wind swept everything before it. In the northwest part of Springfield the city Waterworks, owned by Lord & Phelps, and employing forty hands, were almost entirely wrecked. The building was of brick and the roof-timbers were demolished. No one was fatally hurt here, but several of the workmen were badly bruised and a girl had a leg broken. The bricks were scattered in every direction. The fire company and numerous citizens were quickly on the scene assisting to carry the goods to the mill to a place of safety. The rain was pouring down in torrents, which added to the horrors of the disaster.

Immediately east of the waterworks, W. S. Barnett's cabinet-ware factory was totally destroyed, and the residence of W. H. Powell, next to, was likewise demolished. Mrs. Powell had her leg broken, and Mrs. Rose S. Jackson, who resided in a tent near by, was dangerously hurt. The cellar-walls of Barnett and Jackson's residences were left standing, but little else remained. Mrs. Jackson's husband was in the country at the time. The Rescue, a Swedish woman, was probably fatally hurt about the head and two of her children were badly hurt. The houses of L. Hill and Mrs. Rose were destroyed. T. S. Quesnell's residence was injured to ruins and he was badly injured by falling timbers. The Baldwin carpenter-shop was totally destroyed, and Mrs. Rose's dwelling was partially destroyed about 50. The path of the cyclone brought the trees one above the ash in height. The wind was seen coming from the northwest in the form of a funnel-shaped cloud which darted up and down, now striking the earth and then bounding upward in its spiral course, leaving a moment's time for command to the earth-portion of the cyclone through the city.

[illegible]

The heaviest losses are as follows: Lord & Phelps, waterworks, $15,000; F. A. Barnett's cabinet-factory and dwelling, $5,000; Mrs. Rose's dwelling, $1,000; Dr. Bradley, contents, $1,000; Judge Baker, two houses, $1,000.

About 50 other houses will range in damages from $200 to $1,000. The damage done to household goods is additional, and will aggregate several thousand dollars.

[illegible]

The citizens could scarcely realize what an appalling calamity had befallen the city, but when it became generally known crowds of men, women, and children flocked about the scene. The residence of Springfield were soon on hand and attended to the injured. Late reports for duties augmented Mrs. Rose's leg, and it is thought the can not live. Walter Sigel, a Swede, sustained [illegible]

FURTHER DETAILS.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 5.—[Special.]—A disastrous cyclone swept across the eastern portion of Green County shortly before 4 o'clock this afternoon, having come and departed in a minute. It came in cloud from the southwest, leaving safety in the northeast. The Village of Boonville, on the Frisco road, west of here, is reported as totally destroyed, and rumors of similar disaster are rife on that line. Nobody knows what is coming to this city. The storm-centre was in communication to this direction and all, and all the wires is brought in by persons on horseback. Hand-bill advertisements, four miles west of this city on the Carthage road, was totally destroyed and the building razed to its foundation, although full of children at the time, none were badly injured, and but few are reported hurt.

[illegible]

The storm struck several farmsteads at 3:30 o'clock about two miles south of the west end of Division street, and swept clear across the city to its eastern limits, passing across the city's boundary at the line of the Frisco railroad. The course of the storm across the city varied but two or three blocks from a due east line from about 4 o'clock to three. It passed out into the open country, east of the suburbs. The loss of its passage could not have exceeded three or four minutes, and the destruction of property in this city will not fall much below $300,000. Five persons are known to have been killed, and two others are supposed to be fatally injured.

The recovery of those dead is doubtful, and the list of minor accidents and injuries will run into the hundreds. It is estimated that about forty dwelling houses are totally destroyed, and nearly all others badly damaged. Surrounding the entire business portion of the city, where the storm was at its height, the destruction was almost complete. The roofs of public buildings were torn off and the entire top of the court-house was carried away. The roofs of Judge Bennett's house and Mayor Gideon's house were likewise torn off, the latter's residence was also badly damaged, and Mrs. Gideon was injured by falling timbers. Dr. Bennett's residence was also badly damaged, and Mrs. Bennett was injured by falling timbers. Dr. Bennett's residence was also badly damaged, and Mrs. Bennett was injured by falling timbers. Dr. Bennett's residence was also badly damaged, and Mrs. Bennett was injured by falling timbers.

[illegible]

The loss to the county will be estimated at from $50,000 to $100,000. The loss of the city alone will be about one-third to one-half of this amount. Thousands of people rushed to the scene of destruction, and within twenty minutes after the storm ceased not another vestige was to be seen of the fine residences that but a few minutes before had been the pride of the city. Many of the dwellings were not only unroofed, but were literally torn to pieces, and nearly all of the remainder were more or less damaged. The costly tree of the city, which formed a beautiful shade for the residences on Division street, was entirely destroyed. The monument to the memory of the late Dr. Hurd, which stood in the centre of the square, was thrown down and broken to pieces. The large clock of the court-house was carried away, and the court-house itself was left in a ruinous condition. The roofs of the Baptist and Methodist churches were also carried away, and the steeples of both were badly damaged. The large brick building on the corner of Jefferson and Division streets, occupied by Mr. Hurd's store, was unroofed, and the entire front was carried away. The roof of the Presbyterian church was also carried away, and the building was otherwise damaged. The roof of the Christian church was carried away, and the building was otherwise damaged. The roof of the Methodist church was carried away, and the building was otherwise damaged. The roof of the Baptist church was carried away, and the building was otherwise damaged. KLEPTOMANIA.

AN OFFENDER A SOCIETY LADY.

New York, Nov. 5.—[Special.]—One of the most prominent and highly-connected society ladies in New York has been discovered to be a confirmed kleptomaniac, and for "appropriations" from the stores of conveniences now in social gatherings. It seems that for some time within have been missed from house where she visited. Some articles, evidently of value on the surface in the parlors, bodies from the library, and even jewelry would mysteriously disappear and never be recovered. After many articles had disappeared from various houses where she had visited it was suspected by several ladies that a watch should be put on during her approaching visit to a residence on Long Island. How she was detected "appropriating" a very beautiful opera-glass must be left to the imagination. It was probably some time before the owner missed it, and the thief was thus enabled to retain the article. She was soon to take it and secrete it in her dress the day before she left. Her victim, which is now known, had a watch placed in the room occupied by the lady, and when she was detected in the act of secreting the glass she was confronted by the owner of the house, who had been informed of the watch. The lady was overwhelmed with confusion, and begged that the matter might not be exposed. She promised to return the glass, and did so the next morning.

MARITAL MISERY.

New York, Nov. 5.—[Special.]—In the Supreme Court today Mrs. Sidney Starr Cornell, of Clinton, an actress, began a suit for absolute divorce from her husband, George Cockburn, an artist. Mrs. Cockburn says that she met her husband in Chicago in 1877 while playing an engagement in Haverly's Theatre. They were married after a brief courtship June 28 of that year. A child was born to them, and for several years they lived together happily. Six days began to quarrel, and trouble arose which resulted in their living apart. She returned to this city, where she supported herself by her profession, while Mr. Cockburn continued in Chicago, where he continued to business until about two years ago, when he also came to New York. During the separation she claims he treated her affection to another. The defendant makes no answer to the charge, although a counsel has served upon him at the United States Theatre, where he was engaged. Mrs. Cockburn is a handsome young woman, and has been married but a few years.

NATIONAL BANKS.

CONDITION SHOWN BY THE LATEST REPORTS—AN EXPLANATION OF DISCREPANCIES.

New York, Nov. 5.—[Special.]—A Washington dispatch says: The semi-feature of Controller Knox's forthcoming report will be his discussion of the condition of the National banks and the threatened contraction of their circulation, and consequently of the currency, to the said payment of the public debt. The Controller will recommend as the best method of preventing the rapid payment of the public debt the further reduction of the revenue. He will argue in favor of a material decrease of tariff taxation, and to this he will be supported by Secretary Folger.

The second suggestion will be the reduction of the 1 1-2 per cent. tax, the Government offering the holders an inducement to the shape of a premium. He will also recommend a measure that will induce banks receiving called 5's to redeem them with a per cent. per annum, per that a circulation equal to 80 per cent of the capital value of the bonds be granted, instead of as now 90 per cent of the face value.

GOTHAM ITEMS.

The trial of Ellis Peters, indicted for the murder of John Evans in Stoop Hollow, a week, is near the end.

Gilbert McKay, indicted for complicity in the same crime, has had a trial, and John H. Quinn, member of the county jury, gets half the reward of $2,500 as clerk.

Peter S. Duryea, aged 71, and Frederick Jones of the Fire Department, fell from a coal carriage at the corner of Fulton and Pearl streets, Brooklyn. The one is reported to be dying, and the other is injured.

Officer Cuyler, who assaulted blind Peter Conner Saturday night, was arraigned before Justice Hogan yesterday. He insisted a fight for the prisoner, and Conner was committed to the custody of the police.

The newly-organized Electric Manufacturing Company, Limited, has completed arrangements for the erection of factory and warehouse on the corner of Canal and Franklin streets. Its object is to afford a market for all kinds of electrical machinery. The Board of Directors includes Joseph H. Sears, President, and Edwin S. Lewis, Secretary.

SELF-DESTRUCTION.

Leo Wilde, of Oshkosh, Wis., Kills Himself After Canvassing that City—Committed the Deed in Same Place Once More.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—[Special.]—Some six months ago a merchant of recent known, easily disappeared from the counter office of this state, and Mr. Berry, the agent, was for a long time under a cloud on that account. Persons ordered on the path, however, finally led to the discovery that one Leo Wilde, who has been ingenious and inexplicable for the Northwestern Road at this depot for the last six years or more, was the guilty man, having been discovered in other pilferings from customers and shippers of goods at this station, and when charged therewith, and the charges brought home to him, confessed his crimes and acknowledged to the justice of the law against parties from the road in the agent's office while he attended the being given to other duties.

The evening about 6 o'clock, the whole thing was closed up in Leo Wilde starting himself down with a revolver in his hand, to his own house, breathing his last within a half hour after the bullet entered his temple. Wilde leaves a wife but no children. His good parents and true brothers, of much respected, in our city himself, have the sympathy of all good people. While Wilde could be easy from the law for his crimes he was hooted on a respectable, hard-working man.

LOUIS KOSSUTH.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—[Special Cable Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.]—Dispatches from Turin report that M. Kossuth is dying in that city. The Hungarian patriot has passed his 81st year, and has been breaking down physically for some time. He has lived for over twenty years in an unpretentious dwelling in the city, and in the serious privacy he retires himself wholly to scientific studies. The physicians say that M. Kossuth's death may emerge any moment on account of his extreme feebleness from old age.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—[Correspondence of Bungay, the Suffolk Sept. 29, 1883, at Brussels, in the County of Brabant, where his father was a local minister of the Bible class. Louis was educated at the Protestant College of Gravenhage, where he exhibited himself for the profession of an advocate, obtained the diploma in 1841, and in the following year was sent to the Diet at Presburg, as representative of the Protestant clergy of Hungary. Inspired by the liberal principles of the age, he became a strenuous and violent opponent of the Austrian system of government, and when, in 1847, the Hungarian Diet assembled at Presburg, Kossuth was the leader of the Opposition party. Elected by the Diet to the office of Governor of Hungary, he was appointed Minister of Finance in the Batthyany Ministry, and when the Austrian Government, which attempted not to admit reports of parliamentary debates to become current in Hungary, prohibited also the high treasurer, and in 1848 he was summoned to that great representation, after which a great deal of misunderstanding has been current about the real character of the Hungarian movement. Kossuth was not a democrat, but a constitutional reformer, who wished to preserve the integrity of the Austrian Empire, and the Hungarian and Austrian crowns, sympathized the efforts his right arm have performed this day for his country's freedom. In the meantime, the Austrian Government, which had been compelled to abandon Vienna, and the Emperor Ferdinand, who had fled to Olmutz, were in great peril of overthrow. In this emergency Kossuth was the right man in the right place. Gifted with a powerful eloquence, and with a great knowledge of the character of the people, he was able to rouse them to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. He was appointed to the office of Minister of War, and in this capacity he displayed great energy and ability. He was the moving spirit of the Hungarian Diet, which declared the House of Hapsburg-Lorraine to have forfeited the throne of Hungary, and which appointed Kossuth President of the Council and Governor. The young lady had left her home in good spirits, and the police have no clue to her whereabouts.

There were 626 deaths in the city last week, a decrease of 10 from the preceding week, and an increase of sixteen over the corresponding week in 1884. The principal causes of death were as follows: Croup, 31; cholera infantum, 21; typhoid fever, 11; diphtheria, 20; scarlet fever, 6; measles, 6; whooping cough, 6; cancer, 6; bronchitis, 6; pneumonia, 46; diarrhœa, 6; cholera morbus, 6; cholera, 6; consumption, 61. During the week the Health Office issued certificates of burial to the Cook County undertakers, and reports that the mortality during the present week is much above the average.

At No. 1 N. Clark, an elderly gentleman living in the 60 Kingsbury house, was removing some clothing from a trunk, when a pistol, which was concealed in the clothing, was discharged, the ball passing through the trunk and lodging in the wall. Fortunately no one was injured.

John Barker and D. Cleveld and their families are in the same house, No. 6 Chicago avenue. Friday night Barker came home late and found the door locked. Cleveld opened the door for him, but on seeing Barker after getting inside, knocked him down, and, it is charged, robbed him of $60. Barker was arrested and taken before Justice Summers, who fined Cleveld $100 and costs. Cleveld was arrested and taken before Justice Summers, but was discharged, Barker refusing to prosecute.

The regular monthly meeting of the Union Mutual Library was held last evening at the Grand Pacific
